

In Search of SUPPORT GROUP FACILITATORS

Support Group Facilitators lead support groups for survivors of sexual violence. Our support groups aim to provide a welcoming space for survivors who share similar experiences. Facilitators help create a safe environment to provide participants the opportunity to support each other in healing. Each group is led by two trained facilitators.

We are specifically in need of bi-lingual (Spanish speaking) facilitators, LGBTQ-identified facilitators, African-American facilitators, male-identified facilitators, and facilitators interested in working with adolescents.

DUTIES:

- Collaborate with fellow facilitator in teaching the OCRCC Support Group Curriculum
- Foster a welcoming, safe, and supportive atmosphere for survivors to share their experiences
- Communicate effectively with the Support Group Coordinator about group needs
- Schedule in-person interviews with participants prior to start of group
- Note: Facilitators are supervised by the Support Group Coordinator.

REQUIREMENTS AND EXPECTATIONS:

- Complete the application process
- Complete all relevant training
 - OCRCC Core Training (20 hours)
 - Support Group Facilitator Training (30 hours)
- In order to become a Support Group Facilitator, one must have volunteered for OCRCC or demonstrate relevant coursework/professional experience by providing a resume. Mental health training and/or group facilitation experience is preferred.
- Facilitators are expected to facilitate at least one 6-10 week support group and facilitate at least one 2-hour long workshop.

SKILLS AND EXPERIENCE:

- Understanding of intersectionality and different forms of oppression
- Organized and reliable
- Self-aware and conscious of one's privilege (race, ethnicity, economic class, gender, sexuality, etc.)
- Comfortable with technology and scheduling
- Preferred experience working with survivors of sexual violence
- Empathetic and strong active listening skills
- Able to provide stability
- Practices self-care skills
- Preferred familiarity with the Trauma-Informed Approach
- Comfortable working both independently and with a co-facilitator
